To bring you up to date on myself and Welcome Wagon. I will be celebrating 40 years with the Company this fall. Started in Regina, went on to management in Winnipeg; opened a Canadian Office in Tor-

Dear Mr Vaughan

In answer to your letter of August-twenty-state the School building is no longer suitable to carry on the work, I wish to say I would not under any consideration be responsible for a new-

concerned, it may be.

Discontinued at the

Yours Sincerely

Letter from Emma Nasmith

41 Oriole Road,
Toronto.

To Mr. J.J. Vaughan, Esq.

Dear Mr. Vaughan-

• • • According to my understanding no one of the name of Eaton not even Mr. Timothy Eaton's wife has the right to close the Margaret Eaton School of Literature and Expression, the School that Timothy Eaton built. That is why I left my work until you too would see that what had been done was not right. His was the hand that signed the charter for a School of Art and Learning for women and children.

He had the vision of this School. His was the voice that asked me if I would give my life to the upbuilding of such a School. Timothy Eaton never started anything to let it die and he absolutely refused to believe in Divorce. I remember as if it were yesterday, when the name of the New School was being discussed I suggested that Margaret Eaton be added to School of Expression he said - "Mother will like that."

Ours is the trust! We must all keep faith with Timothy Eaton the founder of all your fortunes. • • •

No other School makes any appeal to me.

Yours faithfully and prayerfully,

Signed - Emma Scott Nasmith

M. EATON SCHOOL HAS 29 GRADUATES

A touching story of the brilliant little Japanese girl who graduated from the Margaret Eaton School two years ago and is now in Tokyo recovering from a lingering illness—using her slight strength to impart principles of physical education and nutrition learned at her Toronto alma mater to her sisters in Japan—brought gasps of admiration from friends as Miss Gertrude Rutherford, principal, United Church Training School, read her letter at Friday's graduation in Margaret Eaton Hall.

"This is the day of fulfilment, your two years' dream has come true!" said Miss Rutherford, addressing the graduates. "You have been graduated into that great fraternity of women pledged to the service of mankind."

Requisites for that service and qualities which she "coveted" for them were "a proper prospective," so successes and failures may be viewed in the larger scheme of things and anxiety about your work saved; a sense of dependability and reliability, engendering assurance that "things will go as the Creator ordained"; a true and sincere humility generating a reverence, a "purpose in life" and "a love of beauty, truth and goodness."

The lithesome young graduates, in graceful, long white gowns and carrying bouquets, were grouped on the platform enchantingly. Lovely, too, in white and pastel shades were music club members behind the graduates. Very Rev. Dr. Stuart C. Parker, chairman, gave an inspiring message. Miss Florence A. Somers presented diplomas and awards. Miss Dorothy Buck read the valedictory. Unique was the ceremony of transfer of student government, by which Miss Dorothy Walker, a graduate, passed on to Miss Elizabeth Seccombe, representing the of sapphire chiffon and lace. Her arm bouquet was of red and white roses, the gift of the cadets and B.S.M. Holmes.

Toronto guests included Miss Denise Arnold, Miss Nancy Foreman, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Edwards, Miss Pamela Booth, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Boyd, Major and Mrs. C. S. Bolshy, Miss Kathleen Everett, Miss Dorothy Davies, Dr. and Mrs. G. F. Davies, Miss Elizabeth Dean, Major D. R. Gubett, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Cronyn, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Corbett, Sub-Lieut. "CIRCLE -BAR" FOURTH COLUMN

By J. V. McAree

WE DOUBT if the Twenty-fourth of May can ever mean as much to this generation or those which follow it as it did to their fathers and grandfathers. For them it was the first day of summer, and there was hardly a community anywhere that did not have its celebration. Those that were small combined with others, and a show, of which sports and firecrackers were the chief components, was put on. One reason it was such a great day was that occasions for mass merrymaking were few. There was a good deal more hard work, we suspect, and the break in it was more fervently hailed.

A Special Institution.

Then, too, the old Queen, who was indeed regarded as an old Queen even by the great-grandfathers of the

Mrs. Baldwin (nee Margaret Pennell) a bouquet. Both she and her husband responded, extending an invitation to hold an outing at their Pickering home on July 12. Mr. McCrea conveyed the thanks of the fellowship for assistance. Games and refreshments concluded a happy session.

MRS. P. G. MIGHT MUCH HONORED

The twenty-seventh birthday tea of the Janet Carnochan Chapter, I.O.D.E., held at headquarters, was attended by 200. Among the guests present were: Mrs. W. B. Horkins, national president; Mrs. E. S. Duggan, municipal regent; Mrs. L. B. Smart, national secretary; Mrs. James Ince, Mrs. T. W. Best, Mrs. A. MacLean, Mrs. A. K. Richardson, Mrs. K. I. Drope, Mrs. Hugh Johnston, Miss Jessie McGregor, St. Marys, Miss Olive Scott, Mrs. H. E. Littlefield.

The regent, Mrs. Gallow, welcomed the guests and Mrs. Horkins, in replying paid tribute to the chapter work and the retiring regent, Mrs. P. G. Might, on whom she conferred, on behalf of the chapter, a life membership in the National Chapter. Mrs. Might, taken completely by surprise, expressed deep gratitude for the honor.

Mrs. E. S. Duggan spoke briefly and a reading by Miss Lyla Osborne, entitled "London Bridge Is Falling Down" was a feature. The rooms were prettily decorated with apple blossoms and tulips and a large bouquet of tulips and daffodils centred the table. The birthday cake was iced in white, pink and green. Presiding at tea were: Mrs. E. S. Duggan, Mrs. W. J. McCoy, Miss Ellnor Parkin and Mrs. J. E. Coulter. In charge of the tea room were Mrs. William Scott, convener, and Mrs. Stanley Harpham. A telegram received from Mrs. Ryland New, Oakville, the newly-appointed Provincial president, expressed her regret at being absent.

Then, too, the old Queen, who was indeed regarded as an old Queen even by the great-grandfathers of the boys and girls of today, was a special institution. She was no mere figurehead, but was held to be the repository of all the goodness and all the power of the British Empire. Canada was too far away to hear the criticisms of her which were frequent enough in England, especially in the period of mourning for the Prince Consort. Such criticism would have fallen like blasphemy on their unsophisticated ears.

A Star Fell From the Skies.

Her long reign and the increasing power and prosperity of the Empire during the greater part of the nineteenth century helped make Queen Victoria a symbol of the timeless and irresistible. When she died at last it was as if a star had fallen from the heavens. Those were the days in which devotion to the Crown and British connection laid the foundations upon which Canada has been reared and which are now threatened as never before.
But the spirit is the same. Forty years ago Housman apostrophized
thus the men of his generation:

"Get you the sons your fathers got
And God will save the Queen."
